Dear Mr. Fretz and the entire Green Earthology Team -

It is refreshing to learn about your work and how your mission is symbiotic with Organic Harvest. We seem to be in perfect alignment.

Organic Harvest is a company that truly cares about serving our communities, their businesses and their environment, with urban farms. We do this in part with farm fresh, "organic" foods.

As you know, sustainability begins in our own communities and food sustains all life. You also understand that healthy soil and clean water produce nutritious food for our communities. This is where we believe our bridge meets in this relationship. We are pleased to see Dr. Elaine Ingham is on the Green Earthology team.

We are excited to announce that our Farm to Table restaurant programs have been ramping up very quickly. We currently service seven restaurants, including the Marriot Hotel in Long Beach. Organic Harvest is now poised to grow and we now have additional parcels of land available for us to farm. We are also happy to learn about Green Earthology's closed-loop, food waste-to-fertilizer programs. At recent meetings, we shared Green Earthology's closed loop program and I am happy to say, their reaction was very positive!

This program makes great sense for Organic Harvest to collect our clients' food waste when making our Organic fresh food deliveries. It is a Win-Win for everyone. We also look forward to supporting your Veteran Green Depot Program, as it plays a symbiotic role to our Fertilizer Exchange Program.

After meeting with you on October 30th, it is clear to Adam and I that Organic Harvest and Green Earthology should be working together to create a greater positive impact. Because of the current relationship with the mayor's office of Long Beach and in the local government, together, we can achieve a greater good for the people of Long Beach, The City of Long Beach and our environment.

Please accept this correspondence as Organic Harvest's intention to move forward for sustainability for all. We are excited to get started and to make to this program very successful!

Sincerely,

Roderick L. Dodd
